CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 15, 1937

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS—In a battle against time to save millions of dollars worth of coal in the vicinity of New Straitsville, from the disastrous mine fire which has already caused a $400,000 loss, work has been resumed by the Works Progress Administration after a brief delay. It was announced by Dr. Carl Watson, WPA administrator for Ohio. The project was interrupted in order to permit the United States bureau of mines to make tests. Three barriers are being constructed in an attempt to isolate the underground conflagration from adjoining coal fields of untold value. At the present time the fire, which started three-quarters of a century ago, is raging within 20 feet of the Martin's Hollow barrier west of New Straitsville, Dr. Watson said. If the 600-foot barrier can be completed before the blaze gets much closer it is hoped that the fire will be confined to its present area. Several previous attempts to stop the destruction have failed. Another barrier is being constructed near Shawnee and the third in Hocking county just south of the Perry county line, but for them the underground inferno is not close enough to cause immediate anxiety and it is thought that they will be completed in ample time to halt the movement of the fire.

Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the Supreme Court of Ohio was chairman of the judicial section of the American Bar Association's house of delegates in second annual session here, which made a renewed plea for greater decorum in the courts of the nation. Asserting that the courts of America have been subjected to "increasing public censure for indelicacy," the judicial section recommended the wearing of a robe by every judge of a court of record; that no court permit its sessions to be interrupted by broadcasting or by taking photographs or motion pictures; that witnesses should not be sworn in groups but each witness should have the oath administered immediately before testifying and a permanent record of the fact be made.

Records in the office of Secretary of State William J. Kennedy disclosed that eighteen Ohio cities, towns and villages are qualified to celebrate their centennials during 1937 by reason of the fact that they were created 100 years ago by acts of the General Assembly. Of the eighteen only one, Toledo, which officially came into existence January 7, 1837, has grown in size to the extent that it is one of the larger cities of the state. The others a century old are Bedford, Bremen, Cambridge, Cuyahoga, Clarksville, Columbiana, Gifford, Harman, Hudson, Minerva, New Haven, Pekin, St. Marys, Warren, Waterville and Wayneville. The villages of Bremen in Mercer county, Cuyahoga in Champaign, Charleston in Lorain, Gifford in Columbiana, Harman in Washington and Pekin in Carroll have given up their corporate charters.

In a "resume of Ohio conservation for 1936," just released by Commissioner Lawrence Woodwell of the division of conservation, it was asserted that results are being noted already in connection with the establishment of a long-time conservation program. One of the principal parts of the program was the improvement of the natural habitat and food and cover conditions for game birds, animals and fish as well as restocking of many areas. More than 100 small-stream dams were constructed during the year, which not only contribute to good fishing but also to the general water supply, erosion control and flood prevention. Numerous rabbit propagation districts have been set up and controlled shooting areas established. An extensive educational movement, particularly for the "teen age youth of Ohio, was started last year and is developing rapidly, according to the report.

Gold Special Headed For Fort Knox, Ky.

The Pennsylvania railroad provided a special train which carried two million dollars in gold to Camp Fort Knox, Ky., Tuesday night. Armed soldiers accompanied the train. The shipment was from Philadelphia. Five cars carried the gold with extra cars for machine guns and army officers, as well as secret service men. One of the largest underground vaults ever constructed in the world will hold Uncle Sam's extra gold and silver at Camp Ft. Knox.

Drop Banquet

Departing from a custom originated 20 years ago, the Greene County Fish and Game Association will not sponsor a community banquet this year, it was decided at a meeting at the Court House, Monday night. Substitute entertainment will be provided, however, in the form of an ox roast, home-talent program, motion pictures and other features to be arranged for an evening the latter part of February, the time and place to be determined later. The banquet plan is being abandoned because of financial losses such affairs have incurred in past years, officials explained.

The state pays for the cars, upkeep and chauffeurs. The Governor rode in this expensive society "hack" to deliver an economy speech on the operation of state government.

Merchants Hear Talk On College; Bank Discussed

Members of the Cedarville Merchants' Association enjoyed a fine dinner Monday evening at the "Old Mill Camp," and after hearing a talk by Probate Judge S. C. Wright, a member of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College, relating the importance of the institution to the community and some plans of the future, the organization turned to the usual routine of business, chief of which was the proposed organization of a bank. A report of the situation was given by the committee composed of C. H. Crouse, Mrs. Dorothy Wright and Walter Cummings. The report indicated that financial interests connected with the Farmers' and Traders' Bank, Jamestown, would be interested in adding the formation of a new bank here.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Prayer meeting service, Wednesday evening of last week, Week of Prayer, was conducted by the faculty of our public schools.

Prof. Furst, presided, short address were made by Rev. Deems, Miss Chandler, Miss Robe and Miss Rife, all of which were excellent addresses, giving evidence of personal study of the topics being discussed.

The music, vocal and instrumental, was furnished by the high school chorus and orchestra, conducted by Prof. Reed.

One of the speakers made a remark something like this, "I wonder how many there are who know just what the Christian influence are, in the public schools of Cedarville."

We had always thought these influences were good but, like it was with the Queen of Sheba when she visited King Solomon, we had not realized the half of what these influences are at the present time. Pupils attending Cedarville Schools are very fortunate in having the influence of Christian teachers, and the ones which do not come from Christian homes are especially fortunate in that they have this influence, beginning in the first grade and continuing while they remain in the school.

All the patrons and the people of this community should fully realize that these conditions exist, and should not fail to give words of encouragement, and to cooperate with our superintendent and teachers in the splendid work they are doing, and the Christian influence they are exerting in our public schools.

There is not another rural school in the state which is in advance of ours in educational advantages or Christian influences hence let us heartily support our school in every way that is right.

The writer has taken an active interest in our public schools for the past thirty-five years and wishes to express appreciation of the good work which is being done in the Cedarville Schools at the present time.

Barnes, farm management specialist of Ohio State University will assist farmers in summarizing and analyzing their records. Adding machines will be available should anyone wish to use them in completing their records.

These records consisting of a record of receipts and expenditures together with a beginning and closing inventory when properly analyzed give the farmers an accurate picture of his business during the year. They enable him to determine the efficiency of his various operations and to prevent leaks in his business. The analysis which is prepared by Mr. Barnes enable one to compare his operations with the average of farms of similar size and type of farming. Comparisons are also made in livestock, labor and power efficiency, crop yields per acre, size and volume of business.

Farm prices have increased more than 15 per cent this year, however prices of commodities purchased for the farm have also increased and the closing inventory of feed in many cases is less than at the beginning of the year.

CRIME IS NATION'S GREATEST ENEMY

The result of the Tacoma kidnapping when a 10-year-old youth was taken from a home and later murdered, has centered the attention of the entire nation as to what we are facing in the way of crime in this country. The Lindbergh case has a similarity to that of the Mattson case, with sentiment probably more pronounced in behalf of the latter than the former. The difference is that a ten year old boy has reached the stage in life where he would be conscious of what was to eventually happen to him. The mental torture and anguish evidently was more to him than was possible with the Lindbergh boy, who had not reached an age of realization of such a crime.

There are numerous causes that might be named as the basis for such kidnapping. The desire for ransom money probably is first. The best aid in making it possible to carry on such work is the importance of the automobile in making escape. It is frequently said that a maniac is the only person that could possibly carry on such a deed. We doubt that. The guilty without question is the possessor of a diseased mind but must have mental faculty that will enable him to at least outwit officials and successfully cover his track. The kidnaper no doubt is a drug fiend, or has a mind poisoned from drink, or he may have neither and lusts only for the financial gain in exchange for a human life. At best the kidnaper is a degenerate that should not be permitted any freedom or exposed to any strata of society.

We spend millions upon millions for what we describe as defense in time of war. While we preach peace among nations, which has its place and is important, yet we are permitting a crime situation to develop in this country that cannot be found elsewhere in the world. Our crime problems can be settled for much less than it costs to get ready for war but we neglect what crime costs to consider the war-peace debate, which nowadays is nothing but a political issue.

Government agents known as "G-Men" have performed a wonderful task in running down criminals but it was only a few months ago until effort was made in administration circles to dehorn this branch of our greatest enforcement agency. It will be recalled that the Treasury branch would have the Hoover organization made a part of the Treasury enforcement branch which has degenerated into a political machine. It was fortunate that not all the administration leaders could agree with the proposal to wipe out Hoover's men.

Crime is the nation's greatest enemy and kidnapping of a human being for ransom has no equal. What are we going to do about it?

The Democratic inauguration in Columbus Monday was a sort of three-headed affair. In former years these events have been of great importance to Columbus business interests, and also a great society event. The degree of harmony that exists among high-up Democrats is reflected in the handling of the day's events. Gov. Davey had his little affair in the executive office with a lunch served to the faithful. Later the crowd walked in the dampness of the day to the auditorium while the Governor rode in his new sixteen cylinder automobile, owned by the state. Another group of state officials had their "swearing in" process in the rotunda of the state capitol. Lieutenant Gov. Paul Yoder took the oath of office in the Senate Chamber. Gov. Davey made a lot of attractive promises about this present term as executive, talked co-operation, not mentioning the expense between his office and some of the other newly elected. He also stressed economy and should be given credit for purchasing cheaper automobiles this year. Last year it was $10,000 class Lincoln, this year it is $8,000 class Cadillac. A big drop in the name of economy.

Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury under two Republican administrations, wealthy industrial leader, one of so-called economic royalists, owner of an art collection valued at more than $19,000,000, has offered to Franklin Roosevelt the entire collection, as a national art gallery. He also offered to erect a gallery costing $8,000,000, with endowment to support it which would run his total gift many millions. In as much as Mellon during the Roosevelt administration had been pictured as a hungry half starved financial wolf feeding on the unfortunate, there was nothing the Executive could do but accept the gift, however, with a flourish. The peculiar thing is the Mellon family became rich in the same manner and under the same order as did the father of Franklin D., who amassed a two million dollar fortune in the coal business. No government control over either wages or hours. The biting thing about the Mellon offer is that there is to be no mention or use of his name in connection with the National Art Gallery. Government buildings erected under the Roosevelt administration have great bronze plaques with the name of "Roosevelt" in stud-horse type, ten or twelve inches high, outdoing Herbert Hoover from two to four inches in size.

President Glen Frank, Wisconsin University, committed the unpardonable sin of making a campaign speech or two against the so-called Democratic nominee, Roosevelt, last October. Wisconsin is controlled by what is known as Progressive-Republicans, the LaFollette's best known as Socialists, but for political and social purposes consider themselves above the common herd of average Socialist. The LaFollette's joined with the other Socialists in supporting and campaigning for Roosevelt, regardless of the fact their political party had a candidate. After the election the order was given by the high-command to "get" President Frank, and a LaFollette being governor set about at once to stack the board of Regents against the head of the University. A quick hearing was held and by an 8 to 7 vote Frank was given the air. Down in Washington and Louisiana word was dispatched to "get" Huey Long, and cold lead did that very trick. It is little for a man of the Frank calibre to worry about. Woodrow Wilson was kicked out of Princeton University without ceremony and it made him governor of New Jersey and later President of the United States. Frank may not go to the top in politics but his name in the educational world will stand for ages to come. The Roosevelt and the LaFollette's will in time to come be connected with Debs and his followers, seldom heard in conversation and hardly ever mentioned in the public prints.

A business acquaintance of the writer in discussing present trend of events in the business and political world, at home and abroad, dropped the hint that some day the whole story of the shipment of war supplies to Spain will be exposed for public view, and the fellows that take down the seventy per cent profit will become known. Much has been said about peace and war and the part this nation would eventually play in the world of politics. It was peculiar, says our friend, that the administration, having no fear of ignoring many of our important laws, should have to wait until congress met to stop a shipment of airplanes and supplies that would net some of the insiders a large part of the seven million value placed on the cargo. Many instances could be cited where Roosevelt has utterly refused to even observe the constitution, let alone some law passed to enforce it. Moreover he has openly criticized the Supreme Court if a decision was not handed down in keeping with his personal view. But to go a step farther what has Congress done to protect this nation and at the same time keep shipments of war material illegal? This hurriedly passed law only applies to Spain and no other country. There is nothing to bar shipments to Germany, if she should have civil war against Hitler. Our attention was also called to the fact that the Roosevelt controlled Senate for some reason or another, regardless of the activity of Sen. Robinson and other Democratic leaders, failed to provide for the signature of Vice President Garner, the presiding officer. All this fumbling gave the sponsors of the shipment of war supplies more time to get it loaded and reach the twelve mile limit beyond "control" of the government. Mr. Average Citizen still continues to play the role of the "chump" in the political game. He is only expected to believe what is told him and do no thinking for himself.

With county officials organizing to check the reappraisal of real estate for taxation in the state as ordered by the State Tax Commission, it looks like the Democrats must be divided on the issue irrespective of the fact that Gov. Davey placed his veto on the law that would have set the reappraisal back this year. If published reports are correct the Democratic county officials that represent the 23 counties on the west side of the state must listen more to the farm and home owners than to the Tax Commission. If the Tax Commission plan is followed the Democratic Auditor of Franklin county says he must have $400,000 to make the reappraisal. The estimated cost of Clark county is more than $40,000 and in Greene county $18,000. The reappraisal is being pushed by Gov. Davey to get around the ten mill limitation. Not being able to raise tax rates it is now proposed to increase tax valuations.

Child labor, that is a political topic, which has an appeal and serves a good political purpose. The national administration has made much of it. Northern states have fallen in line to abolish it by legislation but what about the Southern states? During NRA days child labor was forbidden in all states but the south ignored the ruling. Even labor leaders could not make any headway either with Roosevelt, Richberg, Johnson, or any other New Dealer for enforcement in the South. A recent map showing states with social security laws of some form or another, leaves most of the south white space, indicating "nothing doing." Last week the Democratic governor of Tennessee said: "I will eternally oppose child labor legislation in this state." Such a statement certainly is "treason."

Two hundred thousand employees of the General Motors Co. are now out of employment due to the "alt down" strike. A feature of the news reports was a riot of union employees in Flint, Mich., which resembled the civil war in Spain. General Motors executives are standing pat. Business is being ruined in scores of cities but it is New Deal prosperity that is at stake. The people voted for labor union rule in the recent election and it is now time to reap what has been sown. The only hope is that Roosevelt gives Union Leader Lewis the double cross. So far Roosevelt refuses to take a hand in other strikes. Between the lines there is soon to be a "tie that binds" between the Roosevelt and duPont families. A son of the president is soon to marry into the multi-millionaire duPont family in June. The duPont family controls General Motors. Even labor may be handed the "hot potato."

High Water As Result Of Rains

It has been many months since this section of the state was visited with so constant rain as has fallen from Wednesday night until Thursday night. The past few weeks of mild weather has revived the wheat and also the grass. Fruit trees and some shrubbery now have swollen buds, which would be damaged with freezing weather.

PIONEER STORIES OF OHIO

By Gilbert F. Dedde

The 'Scalp Buyer'

The Recent Dedication of the George Rogers Clark Memorial at Vincennes, Ind., by President Roosevelt, brings up the century old question about Clark's opponent, Lieut. Gen. Hamilton, in charge of the British forces and their Indian allies in the Northwest, as to whether he encouraged scalping by his red allies.

It was General Clark, himself, who gave the name "scalp buyer" to Hamilton. Whether or not this title was merited may be judged from the contents of an intercepted message directed to Hamilton by one of his officers operating along the Ohio river. It read: "I hereby send to your excellency under care of James Hoyd, eight packages of scalp, cured, dried, hooped, and painted with all the trophies of the war, which constitute this is an invoice explanation."

It would appear that this was sufficient evidence to justify Clark in his severe pronouncement. Hamilton suffered for his cruelty. Clark sent him on a 700-mile journey through dark forest and craggy mountain, to Williamsburg, Virginia, where he was thrown in a dungeon, in iron and food on bread and water. Through Washington's efforts his burdens were lightened and he was later exchanged. The name of no British officer is depicted more to this day than that of Hamilton, the "scalp buyer" general.

Farmer Harbage Did Law Makers Dirty Trick, Wednesday

Farmer Amos Harbage, West Jefferson, through his attorney served notice on State Auditor Ferguson, Wednesday, that if he honored expense vouchers for the legislative delegation to go to Washington, D. C., to represent Ohio, when the crown is again placed on the Roosevelt head, he and his bendmates would be held responsible. The Democratic legislature had voted to send a big delegation down to Washington at the expense of the state.

It was Harbage who brought suit in the courts that tied up mileage of members of the last legislature. Harbage did the law makers a dirty trick, especially just at a time when "King Franklin" is to be crowned on January 20 in a glass cage at the head of Pennsylvania avenue.

Grain to Dairy Cattle

The amount of grain that should be given to dairy cattle each day depends upon the production and breed, says an authority at the North Carolina State college. For Jersey animals producing less than ten pounds of milk, no grain should be given, but for every pound over ten, the animal should have six-tenths of a pound of grain. Guernsey cattle should receive a fraction over a half pound for each pound of milk produced above twelve. The Holstein cow gets four-tenths of a pound of grain for each pound of milk produced above sixteen and the Ayrshire should get a little less than one-half pound of grain for each pound of milk over fourteen. This grain ration presupposes the feeding of all the good legume hay the animal will eat. Where the hay is of poor quality more grain will be consumed.

The response to last week's advertisement showing kilm dried corn with supplement to be a more economical feed than hominy brought in several to find out more about it. Seventy-two years ago Gail Borden located a method of condensing milk in a vacuum. His value opened the market of the world for condensed milk. Gail Borden laid the foundation for the whole series of condensed milk products that have followed, each a direct help in feeding the world. Today, milk from American farms is shipped and sold as dairy products throughout the world. Borden has been selling milk products to the world since the turn of the century. Borden men along with others are working every day in home and foreign markets to increase still further, the use of milk and milk products. This year-after-year effort is one reason why milk is the largest single source of income for the American farmer.

Lesson for January 17

JESUS THE WATER OF LIFE

LESSON TEXT—John 4:1-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst. John 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Answering a Woman's Question.
JUNIOR TOPIC—New a Stranger Becomes a Friend.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meets My Greatest Needs.
YOUTH PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Shows Our Dearest Need.

Life, light, water, bread are elemental, fundamental things. Life must come from God. But it can exist only where there is light, and only God gives light.

It is therefore a blessed and significant fact that Jesus was declared to be the life of men. He also says of himself that he is the "light of the world" (John 9:5); "the bread of life" (John 6:35). In our lesson today we see Him as the one who gives "living water" (v. 10).

The incident at Jacob's well in Sychar took place when Jesus, leaving Jerusalem because of increasing hindrance to his work, goes up to Galilee. Unlike his Jewish brethren, who detoured around the land of the hated "half-breed" Samaritans, he "must needs go through Samaria;" for there was a sin-sick soul that needed him.

Space will not permit a full consideration of all the beauty and the depth of to whom men attain by this story.

I. A Sinner Tacitly Approached (vv. 7-15).
Every Christian is by his very calling a soul-winner. We dare not delegate this responsibility to the pastor or missionary. As soul-winners we are vitally interested in our Lord's approach to this woman who was far from God, apparently hopelessly involved in sinful associations, a citizen of a hostile nation and an adherent of another religious faith.

By asking a favor of her he tactfully placed himself (as does any petitioner) for the moment, on her own plane. He was not a distant, learned religious leader deigning to cast a bit of religious philosophy to her. He was a tired, thirsty man asking for a drink of water. But he was more! He was the gracious Son of God, ready to give the water of life.

II. A Moral Problem Faced (vv. 16-18).
One may speak knowingly of the promises of God's Word, and may understand the "way of salvation," but one will never find peace and joy until there is a frank and open facing of sin in the life. Let us make no mistake at this point, for the moral law of God is the same now as it was on that far-off day when Jesus brought the woman of Samaria face to face with her own sin.

III. A Theological Problem Solved (vv. 19-24).
Possibly in an effort to evade her moral problem by theological discussion (a common practice in our day, too), and partly because of her ignorance of true worship, she asks a question about a controversial matter relating to outward ceremony. Is it not a singular thing how men who know nothing of spiritual life delight in the propagation and defense of organizations, and in the conduct of outward religious exercises?

True worship is revealed (v. 23) as being (1) "in spirit." We do not cast aside all external helps to worship, but real worship goes through and beyond both place and symbol to real communion with God (2) "in truth." Sham, superstition, hypocrisy, have no place in true worship. We can worship in truth only when we really know the truth. MacLaren rightly said, "The God to whom men attain by any other path than his historical revelation of himself is a dim, colorless abstraction, a peradventure, an object of fear or hope, as may be, but not of knowledge." Truly spoke Jesus—"We know what we worship" (v. 22).

IV. The Messiah Declared (vv. 25, 26).
Jesus honors this poor fallen woman by making to her his first declaration of himself as the Messiah. He is the high and exalted one, but he is at the same time the friend of sinners. To the learned ruler of the Jews, Nicodemus, he spoke of the new birth. To the poor woman of Samaria he declares his Messiahship.

And she forthright left her water pot and went to bring others to him.

Height of Our Destiny
It is from out of the depths of our humility that the height of our destiny looks grandest. Let me truly feel that in myself I am nothing, and at once, through every inlet of my soul, God comes in, and is everything in me.—W. Mountford.

Love and Fears
The warm loves and fears, that sweep over us as clouds, must lose their finite character and blend with God, to attain their own perfection.—Emerson.

Temperance Notes

Sponsored by
Cedarville W. C. T. U.

The old saloon had its faults but at its worst there never was any chance that you would have to fight your way through school girls to get to the bar.—New York Times.

Every time I see a young high school or college girl drunk on the streets or with some young man in one of the restaurants that so often are mere saloons now, I think, "If the good women of this nation had gone to the polls, national prohibition would have prevented this."

American women, you have the power in your hands to save the world. But first we must save our Jerusalem, then to "the uttermost parts." Let us not abate one bit our efforts to reach out to save others through our missionaries, but for the sake of all we stand for in Jesus Christ, let us move forth at once to reclaim our home base from the enemies of Christ and to set up His program of redemption.

I must now agree with Dr. Michael Hoke, President Roosevelt's physician at Warm Springs, Georgia, whose statement led to the starting of the Christian Action Crusade. Said this surgeon, "Prohibition will never be returned nor will any other great moral reform be achieved in the United States until the mothers and homes of the nation have been spiritually revived."

Mrs. Hegen of the Women's Board tells this story, "Once when Abraham Lincoln was a member of Congress, a friend criticized him for his seeming rudeness in declining to test the rare wines provided by their host, urging as a reason for the refusal, 'There is certainly no danger of a man of your years and habits becoming addicted to its use.'"

"I mean no disrespect, John," answered Mr. Lincoln, "but I promised my precious mother before she died that I would never use anything intoxicating as a beverage, and I consider that promise as binding today as it was the day I gave it."

"There is a difference between a child surrounded by a rough class of drinkers and a man in a home of refinement," insisted the friend.

"But a promise is a promise forever, John, and when made to a mother it is doubly binding," said Mr. Lincoln.

Care of Pasture Insures Good Feed

Rotation of Crops in Two Fields Solution of Problem.

Early, continuous, and close grazing has made almost unnumbered acres of so-called "permanent pasture" into exercising grounds where animals scarcely get a mouthful of grass. A probable pasture is not one on which an animal must hunt 24 hours a day for subsistence, but one where the animal can fill up on grass in a short time and then lie down to rest or milk.

When the first warm days of spring come, the winter supply of feed is apt to be low, notwithstanding the fact that the animals are turned onto permanent pastures and the result is damaged, often ruined, pastures for the entire grazing season.

Keeping live stock off the permanent pasture another two weeks in the spring to allow the grass to get ahead of the animals, and then allowing it to keep ahead will double the yield of the permanent pasture.

First—Let permanent pastures make considerable growth before turning live stock onto it in the spring.

Second—Sow grass seed on bare spots and topdress the spots lightly with manure.

Third—Never graze permanent pastures down to bare ground. Allow the grass to have considerable leaf surface which is absolutely essential to the life of plants.

Fourth—Provide temporary pasture for early spring and mid-summer.

Fifth—Lime and fertilize to replace plant food taken off by live stock through many years. This application will return about $400 in increased pasture for every dollar invested.

The Pennsylvania Experiment station experimented with an old, neglected, permanent pasture quite similar to many the country over.

The part that received no lime or fertilizer required four acres to maintain one cow on full grass feed during the summer. The part that was limed and fertilized required a little less than one acre to maintain a cow.

The return per acre the first year was four times the cost of the lime and fertilizer and five times greater than the return per acre from the unfertilized portion.

Have two plots, totaling about one acre for each 1,500 pounds of live stock to be pastured.

On plot No. 1 sow a mixture of oats and barley in early spring as soon as the ground can be worked. This plot should be ready for grazing in about one month and should last until July. Then mow or disk this oats and barley plot and sow it to winter rye for grazing in late fall and early spring the next year.

The following spring when the rye becomes too woody for good pasture, plow the plot and sow it to sudan grass for summer and fall grazing. Plow the sudan stubble in late fall after the grazing season and so have it ready to seed to oats and barley again early the next spring, thus starting the rotation over again.

On plot No. 2 grow the same rotation of crops, but have the rotation "one crop behind" plot No. 1, so when the system is established by rotating the live stock from one plot to the other a continuous supply of green pasture will be available through the entire season.

For Sale—Favorite Base Burner in good condition. Phone 42.

For Sale—Wrecking building and used lumber and frame. Come quick. R. Wolford.
